A little lad with a childish heart had dreamed of the day when he might have a real toy boat all his own. He was poor, but he often gazed with longing at the lovely things displayed in the store window. Yet there was always the glass between. Would he never have a boat? He wondered. Then, one tragic day he was seriously hurt in a street accident. Taken to the hospital, he lay for months recovering. A kind-hearted man passed his bed one day and chatted for a while. Next time he visited the children's ward he brought with him a parcel. Unwrapping it, he placed upon the bed the very boat the lad had seen so often in the shop window. Could it be true? The little fellow gazed in silence. Then, timidly he reached over and touched it. In ecstasy he exclaimed, "There's nothing between! nothing between!" The restriction was gone. It was his own, his very own boat!

Someday soon the kind and loving voice of our Saviour will be heard saying, "Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Matthew 25: 34. All trace of sin and its curse will be gone, and we will see Him face to face; there will be nothing between. By R. A. Anderson, Our Times, March 1946.

"As I walk about in my chamber with unsteady feet, my unconquerable spirit sweeps skyward on eagle's wings. I thank God for my handicaps, for through them I have found myself, my work, and my God." By Hellen Keller, These Times, June 1951.

õA greeting card that plays Happy Birthday holds more computing power than existed on earth before 1950. Fortune, Signs of the Times, March 1995.
